Little By Little

When Charlie woke up this morning he saw the ground deeply covered with snow. Outside the kitchen the snow was piled higher than Charlie's head.

His Dad said, "We must have a path through this snow. But I cannot do this now because I'm already late for work."

"Do you think you could make the path?" he asked little Charlie.

"Me? the snow is higher than my head. How could I ever cut a path through this snow?" replied Charlie

"Just try. Do it 'little by little' and see" replied Daddy.

So Charlie got the snow shovel and set to work. He threw up first one shovel and then another; but it was slow work.

"I don't think I can do it. A shovel is so little, and there is such a heap of snow." he told his mother.

"Little by little, Charlie", said his mother. "That snow fell in tiny bits, flake by flake, but you see what a great pile it has made."

"Oh! Yes Mother, what you say is right. If I throw it a little by little it will all be gone." So he worked on.

When Daddy came home in the evening he was pleased to see a fine path. He hugged Charlie and gave him a new toy and labeled it 'little by little'.
